

About Me

Andrew D'Amico is the President of UAG and a former executive at Hunter Roberts Construction Group. He brings two decades of construction management expertise gained from great firms, such as Clark Construction, Turner Construction, and Hunter Roberts, along with a boutique Caribbean-based development company. This has fostered and developed Andrew's creative and entrepreneurial leadership style. Andrew has focused his entire career on improving and enhancing the role of the construction manager through proactive preconstruction, leading-edge technology, transparency, and communication, all while continuously reminding himself to "think like the developers/owners" to better understand their hardships and challenges.
